managers of the association.

Present: Messrs. Kirk, Fitzpatrick, Champion, Moore, Reese, Dr. Blake, Dr. Jones, and Mr. Ennis.
On motion, Dr. Blake took the chair. Mr. Ennis, on the part of the committee above mentioned, read the following report :

the part of the committee above mentioned, read the following repert:

The present board of managers of the Washington Monument Society have given to the written statement submitted by the gentlemen composing the "old board" the careful examination to which that paper is entitled, no less on account of the highly respectable source whence it emanates than from the calm and conciliatory tone in which it argues the questions therein presented to the consideration of this board.

Sincerely reciprocating the kindly sentiments, so far as they have a personal bearing, which characterize that paper, and witnessing with admiration the deep interest which is still manifested by its authors in the success of the great enterprise with which the names of some of them have been for many years honorably associated, this board regrets encountering in the statement submitted by them any proposition or sentiment to which it cannot yield its free and cordial assent.

This board does not seek any unfriendly controversy. On the contrary, it is the desire of every member to avoid it. They, in common with the people of this city, and, indeed, of the entire country, viewed with indignation the partisan proceedings in the year 1855 by which the "old board" was onsted from their position as managers of the society. By this rash and inconsiderate act the completion of a great national work, originating in purely patrictic feelings, and calculated to adorn our city and confer unfading honor upon the whole people of our common country, has been seriously delayed, and its success in some degree jeoparded. In reference to these proceedings, the wishes of the members of this board were in accord with those of the gentlemen who were so uncremoniously deprived of a trust which they had administered with high credit to themselves and greatly to the advantage of the enterprise which had been intrusted to their superintendence. We approved of their course in resisting this revolutionary proceeding, and if our sympathies could have determined the favor, they would have achieved an easy victory over the intruders, who, disregarding a proper discrimination as to the legitimate objects of party warfare, evinced a disposition to pervert a most sacred enterprise to the lowest of political purposes. Entertaining these views, then, and giving a candid expression to them now, we cannot be suspected of an unfriendly object in remarking, in the language of disent, upon some of the points presented in the paper before us.

This loard may justly take exception to so much of that paper as implies that we have usurped positions which were not vacant at the time of our selection as mana.ces—an assumption resting merely upon technical that paper as implies that we have usurped positions which were not vacant at the time of our selection as mana_crs—an assumption resting merely upon technical grounds, which might be successfully retorted upon the gentlemen themselves, who, however fathfully in other respects they have administered the trust originally confided to them, have in no case conformed to that partieular provision of the constitution, upon which they base their present claim, enjoining an election of officers, in every third year, at the anniversary meeting on the 22d of February. At no such meeting since 1835 has an election ever taken place. In the year 1835 there was no election. Again, in 1841 there was no election, but it was held on the 24th of March ensuing. In 1844 there was no election, but it was held fourteen months afterwards, (on the 26th of April, 1845.) and the journal states that the officers then elected were to serve from the 22d of February, 1846. In 1847, another regular triennial period, it again happened that there was no election. In 1849 an election was held, which ought to have taken place in 1850. In 1850 and 1853, two other regular triennial periods, no elections were held, nor is there are record every of the heading of the annual regular triemial periods, no elections were held, nor is there any record even of the holding of the annual meetings appointed for these years. And in 1855 the "surprise election" took place by which the late "knownothing board" obtained control of the affairs of the so cicty.

It will thus be perceived that the only ground upor which the "old board" can claim legitimacy is by reason of the election of 1835. There having been since that year no election at either of the triennial periods named in the constitution, that board held over from term to term under the clause of the constitution which provides that "all officers shall continue in office until others shall be elected," and they were enabled to keep their board lawfully filled by virtue of the clause which authorized them to fill "all vacancies" occurring in their own body "until the next triennial election." There having been televial election and they were the provided that the contract of the no triennial election, and the two elections at other pe no tremust election, and the two elections at other pe-niods having been illegal, the members of that board were constitutionally in office on the 22d of February, 1855, when, one year before the expiration of the seventh term for which they were entitled to hold over, they were irregularly superseded by the confivance of their own clerk, who, with his aiders and abettors, misled probably by the irregular periods of the real insuediately recording cierk, who, with his aiders and abettors, misled probably by the irregular periods of the two immediately preceding elections, made a mistake as to the proper year in which to choose officers. And hence the justification of the 'old board' in resisting the revolutionary proceeding by which they were then unlawfully ousted. But, however well founded we may admit the claim of the old board to have been in 1855, it does not follow that it is equally substantial in 1858. During the inter-val time and circumstances have very materially modified that claim. In the former year these gentlemen, after having publicly and elequently protested against the usurpation of the board then irregularly chosen, apparently abandoned their trust, leaving the usurping board in possession of the books and property of the society; and at the ensuing regular poriod for an election in 1856 they do not appear to have made an effort to claim their authority. So also, on the 22d of February, 1858, at the expiration of the time for which the usurping board claimed to have been elected, and when that board actually abdicated, the gentlemen of the old board, by their absence from the meeting, seemed to evince a like indif-In the former year these gentlemen, after absence from the meeting, seemed to evince a like indif-ference to the concerns of the society, and took no pains, either directly or indirectly, to afford to its members any ference to the concerns of the society, and took no pains, either directly or indirectly, to afford to its members any indication of a willingness to resume their former positions. During the greater part of the long interval from 1855 to 1858 the work on the monument and the efforts in its behalf were entirely suspended. Under the desolating, influences of the usurping board only four feet had been added to its height, and decay and ruin were first blighting the noble work which had attracted so much of the active sympathy of our fellow-citizens. The beautiful and expensive engine and apparatus, so well adapted for raising stone to the top of the monument, was deeply encrusted with rust. The building in which it was placed was open on all sides, and the machinery within exposed not only to the rain, but to the dense fogs which sometimes hover over that section of our city. The temporary roof on the top of the monument was in a leaky condition, whilst around the base excavations had been made by the washings of the rain, which led strangers, unacquainted with the depth and excavations had been made by the washings of the rain, which led strangers, unacquainted with the depth and firmness of the foundation, to suppose it in danger of being seriously impaired. But more mertifying than all was the spectacle presented in the shed where were deposited the well-wrought and beautifully-ornamented blocks of marble, contributed by corporations, socioties, and individuals, as patriotic offerings to the memory of the Father of his Country. All of them were exposed to the weather, and some of them imbedded several inches in the damp soil, and fast becoming discolored or otherwise disfigured. The house of the watchman was scarcely inhabitable, and the implements used in the construction of the work, together with the horses, oxen, wagons, &c, had been disposed of and removed from the premises. This dilapidation and the absence of sence was a duty. Their explanations or their counsel would have been listened to with pleasure, and would doubties have evoled full justice from the meeting. But they were all absent, and for more than two years had publicly shown no sign of life as officers or managers; and in this dilemms the meeting, which had been regularly called by public advertisement, it cannot be doubted that the enterprise will be reasonable by electing officers and managers, "to serve as such until the next regular triennial clection," which is just one-tourth of its value. No work of the same size and finish could be they will occur on the 12d of February, 1859. And the election held under this resolution resulted in the choice of the members of this board, which fact, as well as of our friendly disposition towards and of our desire to commended by the general contenence of the society, was forthwith informally communicated to a society was them, to the conference who is replied that he would mention the matter to his exceptions, who read a paper concerning the condition of the replied that he would mention the matter to his conference who had and recommended by the general conference beld at the conclusion that on the 22d of February late not except the society was them, too the menting; and was in existence. Such was the decision of the presiding officer, who was legally an officer of the society and such was the unanismos opinion of the meeting; and was in existence. Such was the decision of the presiding officer, who was legally an officer of the society and such was the unanismos opinion of the meeting; and the condition of the presiding officer, who was legally an officer of the society and such was the unanismed to dear the regular decision of the meeting and the condition of the requisitions of the condition of the results of the condi above recited. We have failed in all our efforts to convince ourselves of the justice of this claim, and, its unsoundness being manifest to us, it would be unjust to those whose conduct is impeached by its pretensions if we should pass it by in silence; and hence our duty most kindly and respectfully thus to repel it.

But, with the discharge of his duty in yindicating those who shared in the responsibility of our acts, our disagreement with the old board must cease. We accepted the trust temporarily confided to us under the belief that such a course was justified by the constitution and demanded by imperious necessity, in view of the lamontable condition to which the affairs of the monument had been reduced under the management of the board montable condition to which the anairs of the monument-had been reduced under the management of the board which had just then publicly proclaimed the abandonment of its usurped authority, although, as before intimated, it had virtually abandoned it almost from the first year of its usurpation. We accepted the trust at a most inauspi-cious period, when we could expect, during our brief ad-ministration, to do but little more than initiate measures its usurpation. We accepted the trist at a most frauspicious period, when we could expect, during our brief administration, to do but little more than initiate measures for the better security of the property. This has been done to the extent authorized by the very limited means of the society. Some progress has been made towards making necessary repairs, and a faithful watchman has been placed in charge of the monument and its appurtenances. We have done but little else because it was not in our power to do more. We did not feel at liberty, in the face of an adverse claim te our official position, the precise nature of which has never before been definitely made known to us, to endeavor to revive a general interterest in the further prosecution of the work by public appeals to the country at large. This, for obvious reasons, we did not deem it prudent to attempt during the pendency of a contested administration. But this conflict of authority we now propose, so far as we are concerned, to terminate. Claiming for ourselves, in all that we have done, and in what we propose to do, to be influenced by none other than disinterested and patriotic motives, and cordially conceding a like purity of purpose to the gentlemen of the old board, we propose in view of the conscientious conviction expressed by them of their right to resume their labors, though differing from them in this opinion, to relieve ourselves and them from any further embarrassment by withdrawing from our position and leaving them to exercise whatever of authority we may possess, trusting that the prestige of their names and influence may again impart vitality to this great enterprise, in which the whole country should and doubtless does feel an absorbing interest. We are free to accord to them our respect and confidence, officially and personally, and deem it to be a pleasure no less than a duty to bear sincere testimony to the faithful, well-austained, and generally admirable manner in which the great object of the society was subserved, to the sati any act of ours, that we have been inclined to relinquish the temporary trust deposited in our hands; and it is upon these grounds that we shall seek justification, if the society, in whole or in part, should disapprove of the step now taken, and which we sincerely hope may, in the brief interval of four months preceding the regular period for an election, enable our successors to adopt such measures as will unite the people everywhere in aid of the great object of the association, and insure the speedy completion of the noble memorial which has been commenced and so far constructed in honor of the life and services of the good man to whose merits and virtues mankind at large award an unbroken tribute of praise, and of whom it was said, with equal truth and beauty, that he was "first in war, first in peace, and first auty, that he was "first in war, first in peace, and first

NEW CHURCH ENTERPRISE.

A few days since we alluded to the fact that William T. Smithson, esq., of this city, was about to issue a book of sermons by twelve or fifteen of the most eminent Methodist divines, with beautiful steel-plate engravingsaccurate likenesses of all of them, executed in the high-est style of the art—the proceeds of which were to be appropriated to the liquidation of a debt now due by the hodist Episcopal Church South, in Washington. The book is got up in expensive style, and is put at the low price of $1 50 per copy; and we have no doubt it will be extensively patronized by our Methodist brethren, as it deserves to be. It will be issued about the first of No-

We now call attention to another enterprise, originating from the same source. It is desired to have a handsome church edifice erected in Washington city, which shall be at once an ornament to the metropolis of the nation and worthy of the southern organization of the Methodist Church. In order to raise some of the funds requisite for such an undertaking, Mr. Smithson has made arrangements to have executed by Mr. J. C. Buttre, of New York, one of the most skilful and accomplished ar-tists in this country, a fine steel-plate engraving of the bishops and delegates of the General Conference of the M. E. Church South, at their late spaces, in Nabell oxen, wagons, &c., had been disposed of and removed from the premises. This dilapidation and the absence of any evidence of progress of the work, or of any general or effective supervision of the interests of the society, were perceptible to all who visited the site of the monument, and have been verified by examinations instituted by this board immediately after its election.

Such was the condition of things at the time of, and previously to, the annual meeting in February last. The usurping "know-nothing board," deeming its time expirely, had abdicated, and one of its members who was present authoritatively informed the meeting of this fact, and at the same time stated that he was authorized also to say that they would "serve no longer in any event." Of the "old board" not a single member was present. Their offices had become vacant under the clause of the constitution which provides that "if any member shall neglect to attend the meetings of the mouths, unless prevented by suckness, absence from the city, or some good cause, he shall be considered as having ceased to be a member." Resolved, That we recognise with entire approbation the action of the late general conference in reference to the great picture which is being produced by W. T. Smithson, esq., of that city, for the benefit of said church, and that we will obtain subscribers for the same among our people to the extent of our ability.

Resolved, That we will also act as distributors of the Book of Sermons about to emanate from the same source as the picture, and for the same cause, and that our bookagent at St. Louis be requested to negotiate with the publisher for a supply of the same, that we may receive the work through him, and that he be further requested to act as the distributing agent to us for the picture, when that work shall be issued.

COMETS.—The great comet having now begun to depart, to return no more for hundreds, if not thousands, of years, it may be some gratification to our readers to know that another is visible to the naked eye, although of modest and unpretending appearance. This is Tuttle's comet, and is in the constellation Pegasus. For the benefit of those who do not happen to have a celestial globe, we will state that this group is in a direct range with line drawn from the two pointers in the "Great Dipper" through the North star, and is about as far from that body

THE FARRWELL BENEFIT of Miss Maggie Mitchell las night called forth, as we predicted, an overflowing house who were anxious to testify their appreciation of the versatile talents of the fair beneficiary. She appeared in-spired with new vivacity, and left many a regret that she will so soon take her departure from among us. Tonight, we understand, is positively her last appearance; and the celebrated drama of "Green Bushes," which was received with such applause on its former presentation, will be given, together with the second act of "The French Spy.'

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Washington, October 13, 1858

Department of State,

Washington, October 13, 1856.

The following notice of the quarantine measures lately adopted by the Russian government for the ports of the Ballic and of the Black Sea, in consequence of the plague which has recently made its appearance at Tripoli, has been officially communicated to this Department, and is published for general information:

The plague which has broken out at Bengael (Tripoli) has made it necessary that the government should adopt the following quarantine measures:

The regions of northern Africa (Algeria excepted) known under the name of the Barbary Coast, as well as Syria, Egypt, Gibraltar, and Malta, are declared to be suspisious countries.

All vessels repairing from those countries to the Russian ports of the Baltic Sea, as well as all vessels which, though coming from infected ports, have had communication, in their course, with infected localities, or with vessels arriving from such localities, shall, before they can enter the Baltic Sea, be held to stop at Kisse, in the Cattegati, where, as agreed upon between the governments of Russia and of Sweden, they will have to perform quarantine, together with their crows and their cargoes, according to the Swedish quarantine regulations. They shall, thereafter, be furnished by the head of the quarantine with a clean bill of health or with the requisite certificate.

Vessels under suspicion on account of their place of departure, or for one of the above mentioned causes, shall not be admitted spin curious and the cartificates, the shall the residual as the such bill or certificate.

The local authorities in the Russian ports of the Baltic have, moreover, been directed, upon the arrival of vessels coming from localities neighboring on Tripoli, and in case that there should be the least doubt as the shallary condition of the place where they come, of in the event of their contact, in their course, with vessels proceeding from such bace, to see the back said vessels to the quarantine catablishment which shall be nearest to o

2st. Every vessel, coming not only from the coast of Tripoli, but all from any other points, with an unclean bill, shall be subjected to figorous purification, in conformity with the quarantine regulation 3st. Vessels coming from healthy ports and with clean bills, but because the production of the persons alling of a suspicious dibase, shall be dealt with in conformity with the annexed article of the regulation adopted, on the 10th of April ultimo, by the Minister che Interior.

[Extract from the Quarantine Regulation, April 10th, 1858] [Extract from the Quarantine Regulation, April 10th, 1858] Sec. 13 If, upon the arrival of a vessel, provided with the requisit certificates as to the health of the ports from which she came, or those where she touched in her course, it should appear from the deel rations of the captain that there are patients aboard, whether amounts crew or among the passengers, the captain of the port, or his atlant, shall be held to invite the physician on service at the quaratitue to repair on beard of the vessel without delay and make a report thereon. This report shall be referred to the quarantine director if the disease presents no symptoms of plague or of yellow fever, of the opinion of the physician shall be deemed to be groundless, it quarantine beard orders that the vessel shall be admitted, with herew, to free passage. In the contrary event, the board subjects the vessel, with her cargo and passengers, to the requisite quarantip purification, and reports thereon to the proper authorities.

EDUCATION.

A LEXANDRIA HIGH SCHOOL.—This institution is a select bearing school for young men and youth in the city of Alexandria, Virginia. The number of students continues, as in former years, to be imited to as many only as can receive the minute attention of the principal, it being his desire to combine, as far as practicable, the social and moral advantages of a family with the classification and discipline of a school.

The grincipal brings to his assistance in the pursuit of his profession, the experience of more than twenty years, during which time he has been engaged in the instruction of young persons from almost every section of the Union.

Stadents may prepare themselves at this school for cutering any class in college, or for the active business of life. Especial attention is given to the study of natural philosophy, chomistry, and the mathematics, as well as to book keeping, and the application of chemistry to the arts are taught by the aid of systematically arranged cabinets; and are made a part of the regular course on civil engineering.

Full courses of illustrated lectures on natural philosophy, chemistry, and atremomy are annually delivered in presence of all the students.

A number of important improvements, both at the school and dwelling, have recently been made, such as the exection of an astronomical observatory, the enlargement of the laboratory, addition encientage in the protection of the complex of the United States, who either have been, or now are, patrom of the names of many well-known gentle mon, resulting in different parts of the United States, who either have been, or now are, patrom of the chool, but the subscriber decust the unnecessary.
